The Paradox of Wealth It's Goods—Not Money

Here on my desk this cold December day is a news-story from the College of Business, University of Arkansas, reporting on trade in our state for 1942. It's very prosperous, the Report says.

Three Arkansas Justices Close Court Careers

Little Rock, Dec. 21—(AP)—The supreme court, meeting for the last time with its present membership, handed down eight opinions of minor importance today.

For Justices T. H. Humphreys, T. M. McHaffey, and Karl Green, it was the last session. Judge McHaffey, 83, was prevented by illness from sitting with the tribunal at its final meeting before adjournment for the Christmas holidays.

While their terms will not expire until January 1, the court will be in recess until January 4. When the tribunal returns, the three will be replaced by Ben E. Carter, Texarkana; R. W. Robins, Conway; and E. F. McFaddin, Hope, who were elected to eight year terms last Nov. 13.

Judge Humphreys, who completed 26 years on the supreme bench, read a prepared statement bidding his colleagues farewell.

"Since coming here in November, 1916, I have served with 14 profound lawyers, all of whom were and are upright, honest, conscientious, courageous, Christian gentlemen and scholars," Judge Humphreys said.

"On account of a long and constant association of the members of the Supreme court, ties are binding as family ties are formed one for the other. So I feel on this occasion like one leaving his home and family with the full knowledge that I will never return again to my accustomed association and fellowship which has existed between us for 26 years and more."

At expiration of their terms Justices Humphreys and McHaffey will retire on half-pay of $3,750 a year, provided by the 1941 legislature for judges 70 or over who have served 10 years or more on the supreme court.

Reversing Union circuit court, the tribunal held that Floyd C. Combs, El Dorado mechanic, could collect $202.21 in penalties from his former employer, Bunn W. Robertson, Inc., under a 1905 act.

The law authorized discharged employees to collect penalties when their employers failed to make settlement for back wages within seven days after their discharge. The penalty amounted to continuation of wages from the date of discharge until paid.

Combs was employed by Robertson from July, 1941, to Sept. 30, 1941, when his salary was stopped. The tribunal said Combs had not been formally discharged but that Robertson's refusal to continue his wages amounted to a legal discharge.

Holding that killing of Isaac Dennis of White county by a Missouri Pacific train resulted from contributory negligence, the supreme court set aside judgments totalling $500 awarded Ben Dennis in White circuit court. Isaac Dennis was killed at a garner railroad crossing Oct. 5, 1941.

Affirming Polk chancery court the tribunal held that street improvement district No. 3 of Mena was formed legally and that B. B. Latin's suit challenging a $340 assessment against his property from 1940 taxes was barred because he failed to challenge the assessment within 30 days after publication of the ordinance creating the district.

With the holding that accessories purchased on time payment for an automobile bought on a conditional sale contract do not become component parts of the car, the supreme court affirmed a Crawford circuit court judgement awarded may whittle against the Peoples Loan and Investment Co., for the value of three tires.

After buying a second-hand automobile with money borrowed from the investment company, White bought three tires on time payment. When he was unable to pay the balance on the car, he substituted three old tires and turned the machine over to the finance company. Whittle said he also gave the three new tires to the company later under threats of prosecution.

Affirmed was a Pulaski chancery court's decision that the Winter Gets Early Start As Cold Grips U. S.

By The Associated Press

Winter — Which doesn't begin officially until tomorrow — continued to get in icy practice blows today which kept much of the nation in a sub-freezing grip.

Below-zero cold continued to prevail in the west, bedeviling oil suppliers and upsetting the calculations of fuel rationing boards.

Albany reported 18 below, Boston 5 below, and Buffalo 5 below.

The temperature dropped to 8 below in Cincinnati, compared with 9 above reported yesterday, but farther west there was a general trend to higher figures. At Duluth it was only 5 below, instead of the 21 below reported yesterday.

OWL's Head N. Y., where the mercury plunged to 45 below, still held the week-end record.

The frigid weather was expected to abate somewhat in the east to-day.

Chicopee had a low of one above last night, compared with 10 above the night previously. But at Bismarck, N. D., the mercury had risen to a low of 10 above, considerably warmer than the 19 below reported yesterday.

Commuters took all sorts of precautions to combat the cold on the way to work. One boarded a train wearing slacks at Port Washington, Long Island, changed to a dress before the train reached New York.

Some deaths and numerous injuries were attributed to exposure.

There were widespread transportation delays, the Pennsylvania railroad reporting at New York that some of its trains from the west were arriving from one to five hours late.

But I haven't given you quite all the University's business figures.

Well, it means you had better look at those dollars of yours pretty closely. There isn't much real wealth to put them into right now.

A good percentage of your dollars would be wisely invested if put into War Bonds. That would save them up for the day after the war when we leave off making munitions and once again are producing the peace-time goods which constitute real wealth.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, Dec. 21 (AP)—Wheat prices tumbled more than a cent a bushel today from the highest quotations since 1937 as profit taking sales halted the slow advance which had added 5 to 12 cents to values since the first of the month.

There was a letup in demand from mills and reports of enlarged country selling of cash wheat in some localities encouraged the selling. Spot wheat, with No. 2 hard quoted at $1.41, was 9 cents over the government loan rate here.

Wheat closed 3-4-1 3-8 cents lower than Saturday, December $1.36.

May 1-36 1.8. May 9.35 3-8-1-2; corn 1-2 lower to 1-8 higher, December 89-3-6, May 92 38-1-2; oats 18-38 off; rye 3-8-5-8 lower; soybeans unchanged to 1-2 off.

that the roles of Italy and France in Hitler's Europe are increasingly similar. Both are occupied countries from which Hitler hopes to draw manpower and other war resources. In both he must prepare for the expected Allied invasion. And in both he must combat sabotage and the danger of outright defection, which may be as dangerous in war-weary Italy as in a France increasingly hopeful of freedom.

For the second time in six weeks Benito Mussolini was conspicuously absent. He failed to attend the meeting hurriedly summoned at Munich just after General Eisenhower's landing in North Africa, at which Hitler apprised his confederates of his decision to occupy all France and sent Laval scuttling back to Vichy with his orders. If Duce's absence permits a wide range of interesting if not fruitful speculation. Is he too ill? Does it mean that Hitler considers him no longer an effective partner, preferring his young and robust son-in-law? Or is it that Mussolini, only a few short years ago the one great prophet of fascism and Hitler's teacher, finds the present role of his country and of himself too calling to the remnants of his pride?

By GLEN BABB

Adolf Hitler summoned his Italian and French collaborators to his headquarters at the weekend for a survey of the prospects of the partnership and the conference must have found them anything but good. In all the long series of Axis conciliations reaching back to Munich and beyond there has never been one so definitely concerned with the defensive. Never before has so little of the initiative rested with the Führer and those to whom he gives his orders.

This, of course, was another occasion for the giving of orders. Ciano and Laval alike were told what was expected of their countries in the period of storm that lies ahead.

The Fortress of Europe must be made ready for blows which may come from almost any point of the compass: Hitler needs more soldiers for the terrible ordeals of the Russian front. He needs more ways than one; for the immediate task of fitting armor to the soft underside of his European domain against the day when American and British armies have cleared the African springboard for their Mediterranean cross-hatch. With Rommel still fleeing across Tripolitania and Nehring confronted by a rapidly growing Allied strength in Tunisia that day may come much too soon to permit the Führer to complete his preparations.

Berlin's account of the two-day meeting may be literally quite correct when it says that "with regard to all questions discussed a full agreement of conception was established." The junior partners acknowledged their instructions, saluted and departed to carry them out as best they may. Both are confronted by serious danger of failure.

For Hitler this may be the last chance, and if he fails again to deliver the requisite number of workers or the desired degree of collaboration from a people whose hopes of liberation and will to resist the conqueror are arising together it may mean the end of all pretext of maintaining a government of France. France's future European position will depend on how this militarily and politically disunited people catches up with the new Europe, the German trans-ocean agency comments ominously.

The next phase, perhaps the final phase before liberation comes, may find France as completely under the Nazi heel as Poland.

For this conference the appearance of Italian equality with Germany was maintained once more, but that too may be a last chance. Hitler talked with Ciano before Laval was summoned to the presence, but it is doubtful that this softened for Italians the realization

Americans in England to Treat Youths

By LEO BRANHAM
London, Dec. 21 (AP) — In the true spirit of Christmas, American soldiers, airmen, nurses, and men of the Navy will give as well as receive on the holiday. The children of Britain, many of whom have been orphaned by war, will be their special guests.

One thousand youngsters will be treated to a Christmas party in Belfast by American doughboys, who have saved candy out of their own rations and contrived little homemade toys for the soldiers. Santa to distribute.

For entertainment the soldier chorus will give a performance of the "Messiah".

On the evening of the holiday, after a big turkey dinner, Irish colonels will be guests at a doughboy dance.

In Glasgow, Scotland, the Red Cross will be host at an old fashioned Christmas gathering around the traditional tree on Christmas Eve. A turkey dinner and tea dance also are planned.

On behalf of the Army's fourth fighter group, made up in part of the Eagle squadron, the Red Cross will give a party for the children of London at St. Elizabeth's hospital. Part of the program will be broadcast to America.

Movie and stage stars from America will join forces with British performers to put on a four-hour stage show in London on Christmas eve, and American boys at one of the service clubs will give a Punch and Judy show for English children.

The American nurses' club in London will give a dinner dance for officers.

Christmas needs are scarce and the available ones are of inferior quality, but improvised decorations will lend a festive air to all these celebrations. One soldier unit restored to store cans for trimmings.

On the receiving end of Christmas, Americans in England will fare well too. Mounds of Christmas mail and packages have arrived from home. Postal authorities say most expected mail has been received.

At one of many parties to be given by Brits, 200 enlisted men will be guests. As hosts, they'll have the British residents of Hampton Court Palace, a Royal house in which King Henry the eighth once lived.

Bombing the enemy continues as the first order of business for airmen, but many of them will take time out to have a bit of Merry Christmas with the rest.

Teachers May Be Asked to Aid Taxpayers

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP) — Treasury officials disclosed today that plans to enlist the aid of hundreds of school teachers throughout the country in instructing citizens in handling incoming income tax returns next spring have been discussed with representatives of educational organizations.

Emphasizing that the plans were still in the "conference stage" of officials, declining to be quoted, said that proposals under consideration contemplated using teachers in an educational program to spread tax information. It was not planned, officials said, to have teachers help taxpayers fill out returns.

The treasury is interested primarily, it was said, in enlisting the aid of teachers with an educational interest in tax problems such as those engaged in teaching business, subject, mathematics and civics.

Treasury officials said the program of enlisting teachers, was proposed as a partial step to meet the problem of handling about eight million new tax persons who must make income tax returns for the first time next year.

The bureau of internal revenue experts to have about 8,000 tax consultants in the field between now and next March 15 to advise and help taxpayers with their returns.

T. Dwight Wilson Is Commander in Navy

Lieutenant Commander T. Dwight Wilson, of Hope, has just been promoted to a full commander by the U. S. Navy, according to word reaching his mother, Mrs. May Wilson, 409 South Elm street, and his brother, Postmaster Robert M. Wilson. Commander Wilson is on the cruiser Chicago. He was graduated from Annapolis in 1922, and has been on sea duty for many years.

At the receiving end of Christmas, Americans in England will fare well too. Mounds of Christmas mail and packages have arrived from home. Postal authorities say most expected mail has been received.

Charles Hesterly of Prescott and Bill Esslinger of Little Rock were weekend guests of James Hannah Ward.

A. M. M. Luther Higgason, Jr. of the Naval Training Base, Memphis, is the Sunday guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Higgason.

Pvt. Robert O'Neal arrives tomorrow from Camp Robinson to spend his Christmas furlough with Mrs. O'Neal.

FRANTIC FESTIVAL

By EDMUND FANCOTT

Copyright, 1942
NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Myra Mack and Fay Ratkovich, two Montreal girls, are invited to spend their Christmas vacation as guests of eccentric Ferdy Lorton, an artist who has a cottage in the Laurentian Mountains. One of the guests is Benny Brien, who accepts the invitation because it offers a hideaway for Benny McCluskey, a wrestler. Beano is in possession of a fortune in stolen jewels, and Benny plans to hide him by having him appear as Santa Claus in a Montreal department store.

NOT-SO-GOOD WILL

CHAPTER III
CHRISTMAS is a season of peace and good will to all men, a season of snow and Christmas cards, of stores brilliantly lighted and crowded with people and presents and gay wrappings and glittering tinsel and enough living replicas of Santa Claus to leave in the mind of the average child a pleasant confusion and a confirmation of that gentleman's miraculous ability to be everywhere at once.

Christmas is also the season of torture for those most noble of men whose fate it is to impersonate the gentleman who takes all the praise but none of the blame for the festive season.

Of all the impersonators of Santa Claus Beano suffered most but bore it all most nobly. The immense relief of being temporarily free from the distracting influence of the police bathed his limited brain with a balm of peace. But Beano had no real love for children. Of size and forbidding countenance in ordinary life he was one of those grown-ups that small boys feel are fair game. Under his disguise 99 per cent of the young customers who filed before him did so with awe and reverence but the other one per cent, disbelievers and saboteurs, took every opportunity to destroy his new-found peace of mind. After the third day they had succeeded completely.

The favorite technique was for the saboteurs to approach with the long line of waiting children, and then as Santa Claus bent over them to listen to their secret requests for Christmas, to slip a thread noose over a few strands of the low hanging beard and trail the loose end away with them from the danger zone.

The saboteur would button-hole a meek-looking child and handing the end of the thread would order him to count three and pull hard and see what Santa Claus would bring him.

The youthful saboteur would be away in a trice, waiting to see what happened and to give a suitable horse laugh to add to the discomfiture of Santa Claus.

This trick upset Beano's faith in the younger generation and he counteracted by gently stroking off his beard after each child passed. But he discounted the ingenuity of youth and the end came quite quickly.

The climax came when one boy slipped a bent pin under him as he leaned forward to catch the whisper of a tiny tot. He patted the child affectionately and leaned back. Action and reaction were instantaneous. He gave a yelp of pain, and leaped to his feet, lifting one of them sharply to contact the seat of the pants of the offending boy.

Unfortunately it was the wrong boy, a boy who was under the adoring eye of an amazon of a mother. She charged like an elephant defending its young and her umbrella hit Beano between the eyes and sat him back upon the pin. His leap back to his feet was so sudden and accompanied by so fierce an expression that the mother was convinced he had returned to attack her. She screamed and defended herself by a swift attack with the umbrella.

Under other circumstances Beano might have turned the other cheek but he was at the breaking point and he turned his back instead and fled. He was a man of a singular simplicity of mind and it didn't occur to him to stop at the office and make explanations, particularly as the woman, lacking originality, had screamed after him, "Stop Thief, Stop Thief!"

Beano hesitated but only for a moment.

"You know him?"

"Know him? Why I'm spending Christmas with him."

"Well now ain't the world small. So am I. What say we look him up."

Lieutenant Benson relaxed. This was the natural thing to expect when one was a friend of Ferdy. He began to turn the car.

Beano snuggled down as much as his bulk would allow. "Mind if I tune in on the police radio. They get some interesting programs."

"Quite," said Lieutenant Benson. "He was beginning to feel reassured himself. If there was anything he hated it was a dull Christmas and he was beginning to feel that Ferdy would not let him down."

He gained upon the pursuit as the pursuit gained in numbers and confusion but any doubts he might have had about the wisdom of flight were finally dispelled by the necessity of disposing of a dignified and heroic floorwalker who attempted to interfere with the directness of his flight. He was

him to count three and pull hard and see what Santa Claus would bring him.

The youthful saboteur would be away in a trice, waiting to see what happened and to give a suitable horse laugh to add to the discomfiture of Santa Claus.

This trick upset Beano's faith in the younger generation and he counteracted by gently stroking off his beard after each child passed. But he discounted the ingenuity of youth and the end came quite quickly.

The climax came when one boy slipped a bent pin under him as he leaned forward to catch the whisper of a tiny tot. He patted the child affectionately and leaned back. Action and reaction were instantaneous. He gave a yelp of pain, and leaped to his feet, lifting one of them sharply to contact the seat of the pants of the offending boy.

Unfortunately it was the wrong boy, a boy who was under the adoring eye of an amazon of a mother. She charged like an elephant defending its young and her umbrella hit Beano between the eyes and sat him back upon the pin. His leap back to his feet was so sudden and accompanied by so fierce an expression that the mother was convinced he had returned to attack her. She screamed and defended herself by a swift attack with the umbrella.

Under other circumstances Beano might have turned the other cheek but he was at the breaking point and he turned his back instead and fled. He was a man of a singular simplicity of mind and it didn't occur to him to stop at the office and make explanations, particularly as the woman, lacking originality, had screamed after him, "Stop Thief, Stop Thief!"

Beano hesitated but only for a moment.

"You know him?"

"Know him? Why I'm spending Christmas with him."

"Well now ain't the world small. So am I. What say we look him up."

Lieutenant Benson relaxed. This was the natural thing to expect when one was a friend of Ferdy. He began to turn the car.

Adkins Makes Flying Trip to Washington

Little Rock, Dec. 21—(AP)—Governor Adkins is on another flying trip to Washington but no announcement was made here regarding the purpose of the visit.

It was learned the governor left Saturday night for the national capital. Mrs. Adkins said she expected him back about Wednesday.

Adkins has been trying to obtain for Arkansas colleges participation in training of soldiers and some observers saw his trip a possible follow-up to conferences he had Friday night with WAAC and Army officers regarding training plans.

This Farmer Knows War Ended In 1918

Knoxville, Tenn. (AP)—The East Tennessee farmer approached a Knox courthouse employee and asked why all the clocks were wrong by an hour.

"Why, that's because of war time; we're an hour faster now," returned Court Deputy Louis Winick.

"That's a lot of bosh," returned the overalled one. "My watch says 11 a. m., yours says 12 noon. I was supposed to meet a man here at 11. Where is he?"

Winick returned to his newspaper.

Ted Williams Is American's Leading Batter

Chicago, Dec. 21 (AP) — Cornering most of the American League 1942 hitting honors, Jean Ted Williams, the 24-year-old Boston Red Sox outfielder who now is taking a course in Naval aviation and is considered out of baseball for the duration of the war became the eighth player in the league's history to win the batting championship more than once.

Williams officially was tabbed today as champion with a .356 — a 50 point drop from his winning .400 in 1941. His mark lopped the .330 Ernie Lombardi of the Boston National League batting title.

Braves posted to win the 1942 National League batting title.

Williams also led in these departments: 36 home runs, 137 runs batted in, 338 total bases and 141 runs. Chet Louis of the St. Louis Browns was second best in homers with 27.

Official figures showed a considerable let-down in hitting this year. In 1941 three men exceeded Williams' new .356 mark, and 16 finished with .300 or better, whereas only seven regulars made this group in 1942.

Aggregate ten mabtting dropped from .296 in 1941 to .257. The Red Sox, powered by Williams and Johnny Pesky took the title for the third straight year with .276 — seven points shy of their 1941 percentage.

Although Joe Di Maggio's seventh place hitting mark of .305 was exceeded by only 21 homers, nine less than he clubbed a year ago, the New York Yankees totalled 103 four-play blows. For 23 years now they have been tops in this particular feature and have gone through 21 seasons with a home run output of 100 or better. Charlie Keller aided the cause this year by matching Di Maggio's production.

The Yanks were second in team batting with .299, followed by the Browns with .259 and the Washington Senators with .258.

In the league as a whole, home run output dropped from 734 in 1941 to 533.

Pesky, who, like Williams, also is in the Naval aviation program, was runner-up in hitting with .331, but excelled the champion in number of hits with 205 to become the eighth rookie in American league annals to pass the 200 mark. Pesky also led in sacrifices with 22. Sacrifice hits throughout the league increased by 36.

Trailing Pesky in the hitting race were Stanley Spence of Washington with .323; Joe Gordon of the Yankees, .322; George Case of Washington, .320 and Walt Judnich of St. Louis, .313.

Spence collected 203 base hits and paced the league with 15 triples, two more than Joe Di Maggio and Cleveland's Jeff Heath.

Don Kolloway of the Chicago White Sox, who hit a comparatively weak .273, tapped 40 doubles to lead that specialty, while Harlon Clift of St. Louis posted .39. For the fourth consecutive season, Case was the best base burglar, stealing 44 to run his total to 163 in the four years. Case was tugged only six times in his attempts, while Lou Boudreau, the Cleveland manager, was nuked 16 times.

Cards Dubbed Surprise Team of the Year

New York, Dec. 21 (AP) — The sports world furnished its share of the surprises this year, but the biggest one of all came in the World Series, when the St. Louis Cardinals bounced back from defeat in the opener and whipped the highly favored New York Yankees in four straight games.

That achievement, coming after the Cardinals had nosed out the Brooklyn Dodgers for the National League pennant, was listed as the year's No. 1 surprise today by 39 of the 87 sports editors who voted in the annual poll of the Associated Press.

Twenty-two other voters placed the Cardinals second and 13 named them as third choice, giving the Red Birds a total of 174 points on the basis of three for first, two for second and one for third.

Closely behind the Cardinals in the voting came the Holy Cross football team's 55-12 upset over a Boston College team that had romped through the rest of its schedule with a perfect record and was favored by several touchdowns. Holy Cross collected 163 points on 33 first-place votes, 26 for second and 12 for third.

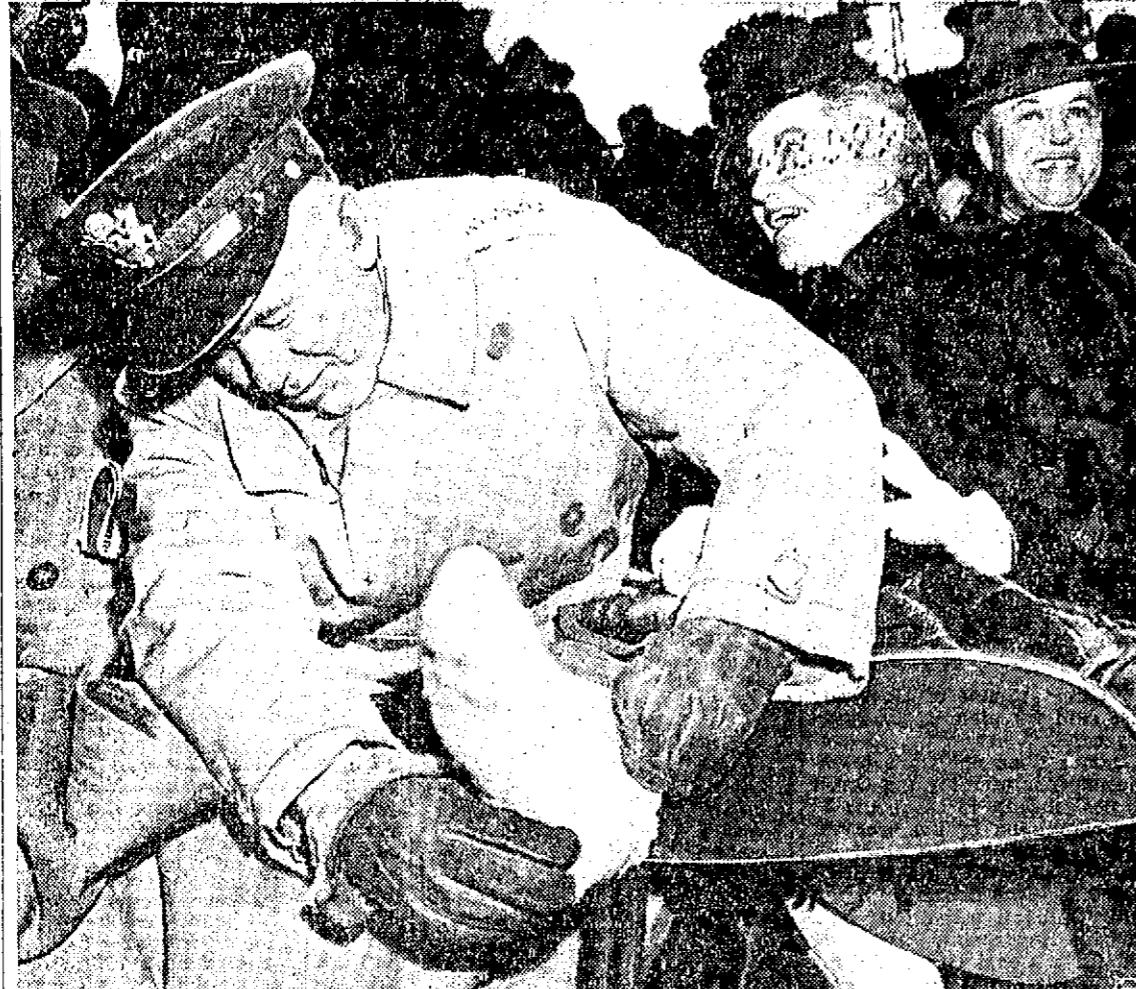

The other surprises in sports during the year were almost forgotten by the voters, who recalled the World Series reversal and the Holy Cross upset as by far the most unexpected events.

Auburn's football upset of Georgia drew only four first-place votes but landed in third position in the final tabulation, ahead of the Washington Redskins, who de-throned the Chicago Bears as kings of professional football in the National League playoff. The Redskins get seven votes for first, but only 31 points, compared with Auburn's 43.

Other surprises mentioned for first on one or more ballots included the unexpected showing of the Illinois football team. Notre Dame's victory over the Iowa Seawhaws and the St. Louis Browns' rise in the American League.

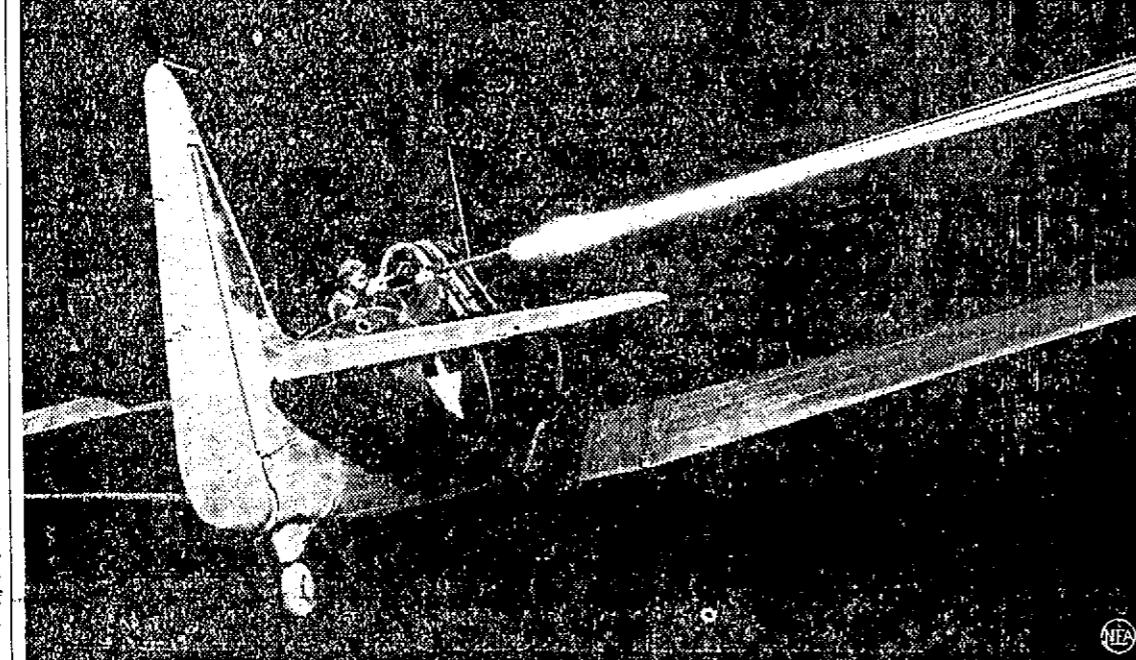

The Moslem university of Al-Azhar in Cairo dates back to A.D. 970.

Hogs Set Pace in Southwest Conference Loop

By The Associated Press
Arkansas' tall Razorbacks are setting a merry pace along the Southwest conference basketball trail as the practice schedule nears its close.

The Porkers are undefeated in seven games and are averaging 46 points per game.

The Razorbacks wound up play before the Christmas holidays by beating Ouachita 44-29 Saturday night.

The big news along the basketball front is not confined to Arkansas, however. The Texas Longhorns, who had been moving in perfect rhythm, ran into a tarter Saturday night in losing to Corpus Christi Naval Air station 55-50. But that defeat doesn't reflect much on Texas' chances in the conference race which starts in January.

The Corpus Christi Naval Air Station numbers among its galaxy of stars one bat 'em Bob Kinney, who was an all-American at Rice. Kinney flipped in 31 points in the win over Texas.

Texas Christian has been doing well also. The Horned Frogs lost their opener to North Texas State but came back to beat North Texas three times and to add four more victories along the way.

Rice showed it was a top contender for the conference title by beating Louisiana State by 30 points last week although LSU evening things up the next night by nosing the Owls out 62-60.

Southern Methodist has played only two games but won them both while Texas A. & M. has been victorious in three out of four. Baylor hasn't played any games as yet.

There are no tilts scheduled this week at any of the schools because of the Christmas vacation period. Next week most of the teams will go to Oklahoma City for the all-college tournament.

Barney Ross Is Man of Year in Boxing

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
New York, Dec. 21 (AP) — Barney Ross, who won three world championships in the ring but now does his fighting in far-off Guadalcanal as a corporal in the United States Marines, is the winner of the Edward J. Neil Memorial trophy as boxing's "man of the year."

Although he hasn't pulled on the padded gloves in many months, the little Chicagoan was the unanimous choice of members of the New York Boxing Writers Association to receive the award given each year in memory of the former Associated Press sports writer who was killed in 1938 while serving a war correspondent in Spain.

The writers considered no other candidate than Corporal Barney, who only last month stood off a detachment of Japs and protected three wounded comrades all night until help arrived the next day.

It was Nov. 19 that Ross, wounded and suffering from shock and fever, refused to be evacuated when his Marine unit was ordered to the rear after being isolated in dangerously located underbrush.

Instead, he stood guard over his wounded pals in a fox hole exposed to hidden machine gun nest. He fired more than 450 rounds of ammunition, pitched hand grenades and prayed. He killed at least seven Japs and his rescuers said he probably got ten more.

His commanding officer recommended him for either the Navy Cross or the Army's Distinguished Service Cross.

The Neil plaque, awarded to the man who did the most for boxing during the year, will be presented at the association's annual dinner early in 1943. Members hope Barney will be on hand to accept the award in persons.

He is expected back in the United States in January, but if he is unable to attend the dinner, the award will be presented to a ranking Marine officer who will accept in the boxer's behalf. One of the invited guests will be Lieut. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the United States Marines.

Ross is the fifth man to be named for the honor. Three of the others also are in the service, but only on received the award, like Ross, after donning a uniform.

That was Sergeant Joe Louis, the winner of the trophy in 1941. The other winners were Jack Dempsey, now a Lieutenant commander in the Coast Guard; Billy Conn, now an Army Corporal, and Henry Armstrong.

Coroner's jury returned a verdict that he "came to his death with self-inflicted gun shot wounds," and Sheriff Claud Screens said he was hunting at the time for a turkey he had wounded the day before but had been unable to find.

Scott came here several days ago as the guest of Robert W. Woodruff, and with others at Woodruff's plantation, had participated in the Saturday Turkey drive.

Students Are Advised to Stay in Class

By KENNETH L. DIXON

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP) — National manpower and educational leaders today advised students and instructors to stay in class until called to fight as the grim strains of martial music rose to drown out that old college song on the nation's campuses.

A joint educational-military training program soon will place an estimated 200,000 potential fighting men in some 350 colleges and universities—their tuition paid by the armed forces and their lessons to be tested later perhaps on distant battlefronts.

Under the system, many who would have been college students in peacetime will drill for special war assignments and commissions.

College girls will be urged to continue their studies to keep the schools operating on as regular a schedule as possible in wartime, officials said. Most military classes will be in separate rooms from the co-educational courses, but not in separate buildings, and classes may be mixed in some cases, the school leaders said.

Human Embryo Is Recovered by Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
New York, Dec. 21—Recovery of a human embryo only seven-and-a-half days old, the earliest stage of human development ever seen, is described today in the annual report of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

This life-at-beginning specimen was so small it would pass easily through the letter "o" of small newspaper type. Far smaller than that, however, was the essential germ portion that would have developed into a child. This germ was to layers of tissue, rolled into a tiny ball. It would have taken seven of these rolls to cover a period on this news page.

This ball evidently quickly starts to unroll. It was already unrolled in a nine-and-a-half day human embryo, which was also recovered this year, and given to the Carnegie biologists for study. In an older human embryo the tissues which would form the head were identifiable as such at 18 1/2 days after conception.

The report says that these two youngest embryos give information about an important period which, so far as the human species is concerned, has been known only hypothetically.

The evidence from the study so far is that human conception on the average follows an almost specific pattern in the time of beginning. The possibility is also indicated that five or six days may elapse after conception before the embryo makes its permanent connection with the mother.

All these early specimens came from surgical operations done for medical reasons, and not for abortions. An unexpected finding has been a comparatively large proportion of so-called pathological or imperfect embryos. Due to imperfections these cannot develop normally. What becomes of some of them is not clear. The report comments—"It need hardly be added that the earliest disturbances and abnormalities of human development are quite as important as the normal stages."

Washington

By JACK STINNETT
Wide World Features Writer

Washington — The Capital in wartime:

The Washington landmarks are numerous and interesting, but no visitor who has ever been here more than a few hours will misunderstand when I say that one of the never-to-be-forgotten things has been cabby chatter that comes from the capital's taxi drivers. For years, it has been impossible to sit in a Washington taxi and discuss the weather, the high price of eggs, the state of the nation, the defections of certain congressmen, what's the matter with Aunt Tillie, without getting a windy, but frequently salty, dissertation from the driver's seat.

Capital cabbies put the traditional gabby barbers in the shade. Some of this is no doubt due to the fact that Washington cabs are between the back and front seas between the back and front seas. But there's something deeper than that, something that only can be explained by the nature of the drivers. They're a class apart either friendly southerners who just can't keep from being friendly, or northerners who have lost their inhibitions.

So far as I know, the only man who ever thought of putting this characteristic to use is Public Utilities Commission Chairman James H. Flanagan.

In two blitzkrieg "directives," Flanagan has taken steps to channel cabby chatter into those directions where it will do the most good. From now on, the conversation you get from the front seat here is supposed to run something like this: "Now look at that mug, crossing in the middle of the street. He almost got hit. He might have gotten a lot of broken bones. I hope you don't do anything like that lady. Always cross the green light and never cut across the middle of a block. That way, the chances are 100 to 1—and no hoochie ever gave better odds than that—you won't end up as a pedestrian casualty in some hospital."

Or: "Did you see that lug—the way he shot out from the curb without signalling? And then made a left turn across two lanes of traffic? Do you drive a car, Mis'ler? Well, I hope you don't drive one like that. We got to get our accident rate down and it's fellows like that run it up."

In other words, the more than 1,700 local cab drivers here are now traffic safety lecturers and some of them take their work pretty seriously. But that isn't all.

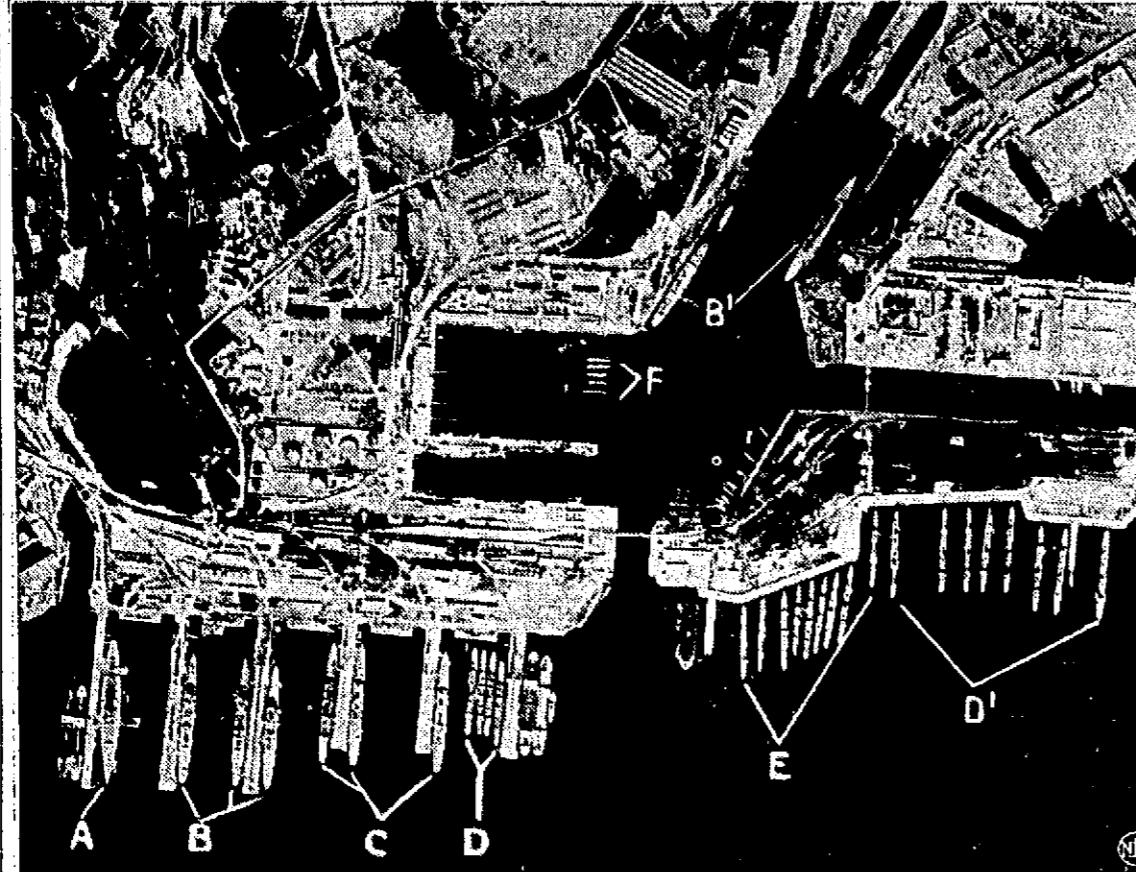

Flanagan having gotten this idea of directing the capital cabbies' conversations into channels that be of some value to the community, has issued another "directive."

Instead of saying, "Thanks, Pal," to those customers who add a tip to the fare (or even those who don't), Washington jehus are now supposed to usher their fares out with: "And now, Madame (Sir or Miss), you sure you ain't forgot nothing?"

According to Flanagan and the PUC, this is just another step in combating the ravages of war. While the rest of the country has had a marked decline in traffic fatalities since tire and gasoline rationing and reduction in driving speeds started, Washington has mounted to an all-time high.
